WHISKY LEGISLATION.

To the Editor of The Morristown Gazette: There is no doubt of the fact that a very decided majority of the voters of both political parties, in most of the counties in Tonnessee, desire to be rid of the curse of whisky. This has been so for a number of so to-day than ever before. It is now settled beyond serious controversy that prohibitory and loeal option laws are constitutional.

Very extensive experience in many of the States has demonstrated that, outside of the large towns, prohibition, whether by vote under a local option law, or by direct enactment, does prohibit.

If the will of the people on this subject could be expressed by enactment, of the Tennessee Legislature, we would have either a prohibitory or a local option law enacted by the next General Assem-have hitherto been defeated. How? soon an active interest taken in this matter, by temperance men, of both parties, another defeat awaits them. When the nominating conventions meet, the whisky men by themselves and by those whom they can Highest market price paid for all kinds of Country trust, will be on hand. They will be there to deprecate making a po litical question out of the whisky question. They will be there to express themselves as loudly in favor of temperance as any body. But they will be there to effect the nominction of men for Legislative office, who are non-committal on this subject. And unless they are met and beaten in this particular game, the next Legislature of Tennessee will take no decided step in regard to the sale of whisky. Now, this ought not to be made a party question, for the reason. that among the masses, both parties alike favor decided steps in regard to whisky.

This is what ought to be done. Temperance men of both parties ought now to begin to put their heads together-and ascertain who are the proper men of their respective parties, to be trusted. If candidates are making themselves known, temperance men ought to approach them and exact from them decided pledges. If they will not make these pledges, let men be brought out who will make them. Then let temperance men attend the conventions in force sufficient to compel the nomination of such men as they can trust. For certainly, a man is not less worthy to be trusted as a Democrat, because he is a seber man, and because he is willing to de what he can to rid the country of drunkenness and crime.

Certainly our Republican friends have in their ranks good, sound, able, trustworthy men, who will vote for Republican measures every time; and who will yet vote for local option or for prohibition. See to it, temperance men, whether Democrats or Republicans, that the proper men are nominated, and then total services to the public, and solletts a you will not be compelled to vote for a whisky advocate, in order to

CARE OF ORCHARDS.

EXPERIENCE THAT DEMONSTRATED WHAT ATTENTION WILL AC-COMPLISH. From the Cincinnati News Journal.

We thank our Iowa correspondent for his remarks on "The Care of a few weeks ago. Iowa has not been considered as a favorable climate for the culture of fruit, but the experience of our correspondent. who has resided there some forty years, shows what may be done by care and attention. A few years age he rented from a neighbor an orchard in very bad condition, and which had never repaid its owner for the expense of fencing. After fencing, scraping, and soapwashing, substantially as described in our article, he was delighted to see it set and mature a fine crop of fruit. But owing to the scarcity of fruit in the ment did not remunerate him, as his fruit was carried off by basketfuls both by day and by night. But is experiment showed what could be done with an orchard ruined by neglect. There are thousands of orchards in the Ohio Valley which have been neglected in the same way, until their owners have come to the conclusion that the climate has so changed that fruitgrowing ne longer pays. To all such we would say, turn over a new leaf with the commencement of this new year; see that your erchards are put in good order, dead and dving trees and branches removed, moss and all that harbor insects scraped off, the bodies and large branches well swabbed with soft soap and carbolic acid or some other insecti-cide, the ground well manured and the deeply drained soil are larger These changed conditions require in our farmers a change of tactics.
